The Coalition to End Sexual Exploitation (CESE) is a loose-knit partnership of more than 300 diverse organizations, spearheaded by NCOSE, that is breaking down divisions between sexual exploitation sectors, as well as creating a more cohesive and comprehensive national and international effort to defend the flame of human dignity. It unites anti-trafficking experts with digital safety leaders, and sexual violence prevention organizers with recovery programs for individuals who were harmed by pornography, and many more—all to share resources and information to ensure that the movement to end sexual exploitation can reach its maximum potential.
Dr. Gail Dines is a luminary in the fight for a world free from sexual exploitation.

Born and raised in England, she received her Ph.D. from the University of Salford, UK. She began her activism volunteering at a rape crisis in Tel Aviv and started the Haifa-based feminist movement—Woman to Woman—in her living room at the age of 22. Since arriving in the United States in 1986, Dr. Dines has taught at Wheelock College where she was a professor of Sociology and Women's Studies and chair of the American Studies Department. She is internationally known for her writing and lectures focusing on the hyper-sexualization of culture, the image of women in Hollywood, and her piercing analysis of the pornography industry and the violent, misogynist, racist, hate-filled material it has unleashed on the world. Her book, PORNLAND: How Porn has Hijacked our Sexuality, is a must read for anyone in the movement to end sexual exploitation. Currently, Dr. Dines serves as Founder and President of Culture Reframed, a non-profit organization that recognizes and addresses pornography as the public health crisis in the digital age.

Remarking on her contributions to the movement, her friends shared the following:

Gail Dines does not back down from a challenge. She was on a fairly conventional academic path when she encountered the feminist critique of pornography, and she immediately shifted her career trajectory and took up the challenge of deepening our understanding of the subject. When she had an opportunity to move beyond scholarly research and try to write that feminist analysis into state law, she took up the challenge. When academic feminism moved toward a faddish postmodern embrace of pornography, Gail challenged that capitulation, continuing to write and speak bluntly about how pornography eroticized male domination and female subordination... . .

I met Gail when we were both young professors, trying to figure out how to survive in academic life while remaining true to the feminist critique. Over those 25 years I have relied on Gail’s strength, aware that I could not have done my own work without her. Except for the time she almost got me beaten up by Max Hardcore’s security guards (that’s a long story), I have always been grateful for having the opportunity to work with Gail and call her my friend.

— Dr. Robert Jensen

Thank you for looking at and analyzing images that most people cannot stand to look at, images that many turn away from—because people are overwhelmed by images that are painful to see or know about. Thank you for insisting on bringing to peoples’ consciousness and attention to those images that some people deny even exist. Thank you for finding words to describe unspeakably brutal images of women being hurt. Thank you for following the money in the pornography industry and including that in your analysis. Thank you for writing about the racism in pornography. Thank you for being a powerful, eloquent, and witty speaker. Thank you for writing PORNLAND; thanks for creating Culture Reframed.

With gratitude for her tireless and sacrificial service, the National Center on Sexual Exploitation is bestowing its highest honor, the “Founders Award,” to Dr. Dines’ in recognition of her incalculable contribution toward a world free from sexual exploitation.
Mary Mazzio has taken the titans of tech and online sex traffickers by storm with her powerful documentary I AM JANE DOE and her leadership in the fight to amend the Communications Decency Act.

I AM JANE DOE, which chronicles the battle that several mothers across the country are waging on behalf of their middle school daughters who were trafficked for commercial sex on Backpage.com, opened to an avalanche of press. Called “a gripping legal thriller” (Esquire); “a powerful call to action” (The Los Angeles Times); “a viscerally emotional case” (The Washington Post); “especially impressive... a powerful piece of work” (Elle); “striking... powerful” (The Film Journal), I AM JANE DOE has captured not only the attention of film critics, but served as a powerful catalyst for efforts to amend the Communications Decency Act—a law shielding the kingpins of online sex trafficking.

An Olympic athlete (1992-Rowing), Mary is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College and Georgetown Law School. She is a recipient of several awards including an honorary degree from Mount Holyoke College; the Women’s Sports Foundation Journalism Award, a Gracie Award, a Myra Sadker Gender Equity Curriculum Award, a Henry Luce Foundation Fellowship (to Korea), a Rotary Foundation Graduate Fellowship (to France), and an American Heritage Award (from the American Immigration Council).

Mary, formerly a partner with the law firm of Brown Rudnick in Boston, has served on several Boards of Directors including Shackleton Schools, Sojourner House (a homeless shelter), The Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras, The Head of the Charles Regatta, The National Rowing Foundation, and World T.E.A.M Sports (supporting disabled athletes). She has also served as a judge for the Sports Emmys.

Remarking on her contributions to the movement, her friends shared the following:

Mary has been a major voice and force in the fight against entities like Google and the Electronic Frontier Foundation who used their tremendous resources and political power to try to stop legislation that would provide survivors of human trafficking the ability to get the justice they deserve. Without Mary’s tireless efforts, working with groups like NCOSE, the voices of the victims of human trafficking would have not been heard so loudly.

— Rick Lane

Mary is an amazing woman. Her work on the I am Jane Doe Documentary gave me a sense of empowerment and hope. Thank you Mary!

— Jane Doe #3

The National Center on Sexual Exploitation is presenting its “Spotlight Award” to Ms. Mazzio in recognition of her powerful work exposing how the Communications Decency Act shields the kingpins of sex trafficking, and her relentless efforts to obtain justice for their victims.
DREW AND ROBIN PATERSON

The heroic love of a mother and father for their child is a force to be reckoned with. The National Center on Sexual Exploitation recognizes the unwavering love of a mom and dad who will not back down in their efforts to protect their child and all schoolchildren in the U.S. from sexually graphic materials at school. They consider themselves “ordinary parents,” but what they have accomplished through their battle, despite all odds, is nothing short of extraordinary.

After discovering that their child could be exposed to graphic pornographic material on the school-sponsored, taxpayer-funded digital database, EBSCO, Robin and Drew Paterson were rightly shocked. Their dismay was all the greater since all they had to do to find links to graphic, violent pornography, BDSM websites, graphic articles, advertisements for the sex industry, and more, was to enter the innocent search terms such as “seventh grade biology.”

Robin and Drew’s love and determination to protect children from this exploitative and inappropriate material have sustained them through an epic and often isolating battle with authority figures at the school, at the school district level, and even in the media. They have been ridiculed, belittled, disrespected, and threatened. Countless attempts were made to silence them, by individuals in authority positions, with no regard for the safety of the Paterson’s child, or that of the other students at the school. Their list of opponents in this battle is as long as it is appalling.

Robin and Drew’s concern is selfless, as it extends beyond their own child to children all across America, in both public and private schools.

This truly is a modern-day David and Goliath story. We are so grateful to the Patersons who were the first to bring this horrific assault on our nation’s children to NCOS’s attention. NCOS put EBSCO on the 2017 and 2018 Dirty Dozen List. Major improvements have been made by EBSCO and rolled out in schools across America, however there still remains a fight before us. Learn more about this national effort at EndSexualExploitation.org/ebsco

Our nation’s school children deserve better than being exploited as the sex industry's newest targets or unwitting customers. The love of parents for their child has incited a movement for change that will save countless other children from sexually exploitative content embedded in their school tools, one of the gravest assaults on human dignity of our time.
Every day, Internet users are bombarded with sexually objectifying and explicit advertisements on the websites they visit. Hypersexualized online ads appear virtually everywhere online, alongside completely unrelated Internet content. This content is often unsought by and offensive to Internet users.

However, one company in the online content recommendation and ad industry, has stepped up to the plate to fix this problem. Through working with the National Center on Sexual Exploitation, Revcontent has eliminated the use of all sexually objectifying and sexually explicit materials from their ad network.

This is the first online ad placement company to make such an authentic change to combat sexual exploitation, and it’s going to have a monumental impact. According to Quantcast, Revcontent powers 250 billion online ads per month and reaches 97% of U.S. households!

We applaud Revcontent for its corporate leadership in the native advertising industry by rejecting profits from sexually objectifying and explicit content. In today’s climate of sexual harassment and assault, it’s vital for corporations to do their part to stop the normalization of hypersexualized material that dehumanizes women, and therefore fosters #MeToo culture. Revcontent’s stand for women and for the human dignity of all people, not only meets NCOSE’s standards, but sends the powerful message that people are to be valued for their full humanity—not reduced to sex objects.

Revcontent has employed thorough quality control measures to ensure materials that objectify women, such as hyper-focusing on body parts or presenting women as prizes for sexual conquest, are no longer in their system. Their regular compliance audits, human review process, and continued collaborative dialogue with the National Center on Sexual Exploitation set them apart as a company that is dedicated to doing its part for a world free from sexual exploitation.

We can only hope that other companies in this industry, such as Outbrain and Taboola, will follow Revcontent’s lead and work for socially responsible native advertising.
Walmart has set a precedent of social responsibility in the defense of human dignity within the retail and supermarket industry. Within the past month, Walmart has taken a stand against sexual exploitation by instituting a ground-breaking policy at all Walmart stores removing Cosmopolitan Magazine from each and every checkout aisle. This unprecedented effort will impact nearly 5,000 stores across the United States, so that families and individuals are not exposed to Cosmopolitan’s hypersexualized and degrading covers and article titles that promote pornography, sexting, BDSM, group sex, anal sex, and more. Nationally representative surveys show that the majority of Americans believe that Cosmopolitan’s graphic headlines are not appropriate for all ages, and young girls and boys alike have often reached out to the National Center on Sexual Exploitation reporting how the magazine’s normalization of sexual objectification and pornography compound peer-pressure to engage in more risky sex, which has negatively impacted them.

Further, in 2016, Walmart removed photography books depicting sexually explicit material from Walmart.com within 24 hours after the National Center on Sexual Exploitation urged a review of the site. This is a commendable example of swift action to correct a violation of corporate responsibility policies and we thank the company for their concern about these issues!

Walmart’s commitment to creating a family-friendly and sexploitation-free shopping experience is a shining example to all retailers and, because of their leadership, we believe other companies will soon follow suit.

A robust campaign in collaboration with NCOSE’s ally, Enough is Enough, led to both STARBUCKS and MCDONALD’S agreeing to filter their WiFi in all U.S. locations.

SNAPCHAT now prohibits sensitive content, including overly sexualized content, within Discover, the publisher section of the app.

The Chairman of OVERSTOCK.COM ordered that nearly all of the pornographic and sexually explicit magazines, books, films, and other items be removed from sale on this prominent shopping website.

All four burger brands under CKE RESTAURANTS promised to stop producing hyper-sexualized, misogynistic ads for their fast food products.

AMERICAN APPAREL stopped using nudity and depicting sex acts in advertising for its clothing lines and took extensive measures to remove these past ads from online and print catalogues.

COMCAST has improved usability and tightened the parental control settings for cable users, and in 2017 agreed to make it much harder to just stumble upon the pornographic content they are selling.

Despite their past laissez-faire approach to sexual exploitation, TWITTER is now blocking several pornography- and prostitution-related search terms, or hashtags, —particularly from the results in the “Photos” and “Videos” section of the social media platform.

After NCOSE led a boycott with more than 20,000 participants, GROUPON promised to stop selling coupons for sexually exploitive events like tours of torture porn studios or parties at the Playboy mansion.

WHO WE ARE

The U.S. Institute Against Human Trafficking is working to end Human Trafficking in the United States through prevention, combating demand, the rescue of victims, and providing safe refuge for the restoration of survivors. We seek new and innovative ways to combat demand, raise awareness to this issue, and provide safe environments for survivors.

OUR EFFORTS INCLUDE...

• Creating financially stable and replicable Safe Homes for survivor restoration across the country

• Partnering with local law enforcement, governments, businesses, schools and community-based organizations to create TraffickingFree Zones™

• Educating federal, state and local government officials about the problem and what more they can do to stop it

• Eliminating the "demand" by promoting legislative and law enforcement focus on the sex buyers instead of those being sold

It is time to bring them home!

For many, the path to trafficking began with steps to a perceived new life. Leaving a town, or leaving a country led to a life of terror, and abuse. If you are an organization working to end this blight on humanity, then Cornerstone is here to help. Our solutions and programs will help your organization or ministry to reduce your costs, improve your security, and enhance the overall donation processing experience for your staff and donors.

Most importantly, we will stand with you to restore broken lives, and help you to bring them home!

ANGELA
Mother of Jane Doe #3
PANEL: Life After Trauma: Survivor Perspectives

Angela started her fight against child sex trafficking in 2013 when her 15-year-old daughter was exploited and sold online. This experience had a devastating impact on her daughter as well as on her entire family. Angela has made her life’s mission to advocate against child sex trafficking.

Sharing her family’s experience gives Angela the opportunity to shed a light on child sex trafficking and to inform others that this could happen to any family.

Angela and her daughter appeared in the I am Jane Doe Documentary. Angela has been actively advocating to amend Sec 230 of the Communications Decency Act.

ERNIE ALLEN
Former President and CEO, National Center for Missing & Exploited Children and the International Centre for Missing & Exploited Children
Corroding Childhood: Protecting Children from Internet Pornography

Ernie Allen is a global expert on the digital economy; the dark side of the internet; public-private partnerships and child protection including the issues of child abduction, sexual exploitation, sexual violence and human trafficking. He frequently speaks to global audiences on these issues and serves as an advisor to governments, law enforcement, technology companies, nonprofit organizations and others.

In 2015 he was appointed by then-UK Prime Minister David Cameron to chair a global effort for the British government to combat online child abuse. He continues to serve as chair of an expanded WePROTECT Global Alliance under Prime Minister Theresa May following the merger with the EU/US Global Alliance Against Child Sexual Abuse Online.

Previously he was Founding Chairman of the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children and served as President and CEO for more than 28 years. He created the national missing children hotline; the CyberTipline to report sexual exploitation and brought forensic resources and training to law enforcement. During his tenure over 180,000 missing children were recovered, the recovery rate increased from 62% to 97%, and thousands of victims of child sexual exploitation were rescued.

To extend the effort globally he founded the International Centre for Missing & Exploited Children and served simultaneously as its President and CEO. He built a global network of 23 nations and worked with parliaments to enact laws in 100 countries. He led efforts to implement new global policies on virtual currencies and the anonymous “Dark Web”, created new technologies to address child victimization, and helped reduce a $30 billion commercial child pornography industry to virtually zero.

Mr. Allen’s work has been widely recognized and he is the author of numerous articles and book chapters.

JEANNE L. ALLERT, M.ED.
Founder and Executive Director, The Samaritan Women
Assumptions vs. Realities in Long-term Survivor Care

In 2007 Jeanne founded and currently directs The Samaritan Women, a national faith-based organization providing assessment, restorative, and graduate care for survivors of domestic sex trafficking. Jeanne is chief architect behind TSW’s Continuum of Care model which integrates survivor-input, evidenced-based practices, trauma-informed principles and faith-based values.
She is a member of the Department of Homeland Security’s Blue Campaign and graduate of the FBI Citizen’s Academy. She co-authored A Funding Survey of Residential Service Providers in 2016 and a Guide for Human Trafficking Residential Service Providers in 2015 with the Virginia Commonwealth Department of Justice. Her work has been featured in the 2015 documentary IN PLAIN SIGHT, in two books and numerous articles.

Jeanne has served as an international public speaker for over 25 years. She holds a Masters in Education and is pursuing a Masters in Divinity. She is a member of the American Association of Christian Counselors and a frequent national speaker on the issue of human trafficking victimology and effective restorative care. Her passion going forward is to provide exemplary care to survivors, and mentor other agencies to build up a network of national service providers.

MATT AUJERO
Campus Minister, Catholic Student Center at University of Maryland
RALLY: Update Presentation: Fight Club: An Accountability Recovery Model for College Men

Married to his wife Mimi in 2013, Matt Aujero’s mission is to create a better, purified world for his two daughters and the next generation. That same year, Matt created Fight Club, a purity accountability program for college men through his work at the Catholic Student Center at the University of Maryland. Matt’s addiction recovery story and Mimi’s journey with him has been video featured by Fight the New Drug and co-written in Matt Fradd’s book Restored: True Stories of Love and Trust After Porn. A speaker representing the Maryland Coalition Against Pornography, Catholic Terps, and his blog Catholic Fried Rice, Matt’s message of porn recovery has reached men and women across the world.

MARY BAWDEN
Founder and Director, Soul to Sole Choreography & DA:NCE
Children’s Dance: Educational or Sexualized

Mary Margaret Bawden received a BA in modern dance from UCRiverside, a MA in worship (emphasis in dance) from Hope International University in Fullerton CA, and a California secondary teaching credential. She released a book in 2016 on faith-based dance titled “Dance is Prayer in Motion: Soul to Sole Choreography for Christian Dance Ministry” and has led a dance ministry at her church for over 20 years. Mary is the founder of DA:NCE(Dance Awareness: No Child Exploited) and Soul to Sole Choreography. In January and February of this year, Mary spoke on the hyper-sexualization of children in dance at the State CDEA (California dance educator’s organization) and the State CAHPERD (California Health Physical Education Recreation and Dance) Conferences. In addition to dance venues, she welcomes invitations to speak on the DA:NCE topic from other organizations that are concerned about protecting children from sexual exploitation.

LACY ALAJNA BENTLEY
Founder and CEO, Women United Recovery Coalition
Female Dynamics of Pornography Prevention, Usage, and Exploitation

Lacy is Founder and CEO of Women United Recovery Coalition, an organization dedicated to raising awareness of female pornography addiction and women’s unique recovery needs. She has been working with women in addiction and self-destructive behaviors since 2000. As a writer, mentor, coach, and speaker, Lacy focuses on letting go of perfectionism in recovery while maintaining accountability, honesty and personal responsibility. She has written blog posts and articles for numerous magazines, women’s recovery sites, and other leading organizations in the movement towards ending exploitation. As a former Hentai (sexualized anime) user and relationship addict, Lacy has seen firsthand the destructive patterns objectification in any form can cause to an individual psyche and family unit. It is for these reasons, and the protection of innocence everywhere, she fights to end exploitation and bring healing and hope to a sexualized world. Currently, she is conducting research on female exposure, usage, and addiction patterns. Her hope is to better inform prevention, treatment and recovery for this very real, very vulnerable population of women and girls trapped in their own pornography usage. This usage, Lacy believes, makes female users more vulnerable to exploitation and abuse.

Taina Bien-Aimé is the Executive Director of the Coalition Against Trafficking in Women (CATW), one of the oldest international organizations dedicated to ending trafficking in women and girls and commercial sexual exploitation as practices of gender-based violence and discrimination. Prior to this position, Taina was the Executive Director of Women’s City Club of New York, an advocacy organization that helps shape policy in New York. She is also a founding Board member of and later served as the Executive Director of Equality Now (2000–2011), an international human rights organization focused on the rights of women and girls. She was Director of Business Affairs/Film Acquisitions at Home Box Office (1996–2000) and practiced international corporate law at the Wall St. law firm, Cleary Gottlieb Steen & Hamilton (1992–1996). Taina holds a Juris Doctor from NYU School of Law and a Licence in Political Science from the University of Geneva/Graduate School of International Studies in Switzerland. Her awards include the New York County Lawyers’ Association Edith I. Spivack Award and the NYU Law Alumni Association Award for Distinguished Service in the Public Interest. Taina is a contributor to the Huffington Post, sits on the Boards of the New York Women’s Foundation and the New York City’s Mayoral Commission on Gender Equity.

Sam Black is the VP of Partnerships at Covenant Eyes where he works with like minded organizations in the quest to change the culture surrounding the issue of pornography. He joined the Covenant Eyes team in 2007 after 18 years as a journalist, and has edited 16 books on the impact of pornography, how to protect our families, and how God’s grace brings restoration. He has been married for 21 years and is a father of two. Sam authored “The Porn Circuit: Understand Your Brain and Break Porn Habits in 90 Days.”

Mrs. Boakye holds a B.S. and M.S. in sociology from Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology, Ghana. Her main areas of expertise are: HIV-related human rights and discrimination, human rights education and course training, extensive experience with gender-based violence (GBA), civil society involvement in development, and strong research and analytical capacities.

Belief as a Precursor for Change
PANEL: #MeToo: Inconsistencies, Divides, and Pitfalls in the Movement to End Sexual Assault & Rape Culture

Amber Rose Carlson is a PhD candidate in philosophy at Vanderbilt University who specializes in social epistemology, feminist philosophy, and ethics. Amber’s dissertation argues for the epistemic significance of rape victim testimony—arguing not only that responsible cognizers should believe rape victim testimony, but also that rape victim testimony calls us to reimagine our current epistemic standards for reliable testimony.

Holding graduate degrees from Princeton Theological Seminary (M.Div), Texas A&M (M.A., philosophy), and the University of Notre Dame (M.A., philosophy), Amber supplements her specializations with a broad philosophical background. Her areas of concentration include philosophy of religion, trauma theory, and the history of philosophy, especially Ancient, Medieval, and Early Modern eras.

In addition to her research, Amber works for women’s rights as a writer and advocate, with a specific focus on sexual assault. Visit her website at AmberRoseCarlson.com.

President and CEO, Development and Forensic Pediatrician
New Definition of Trafficking: The Role of Pornography
The Lifelong Threat of Abusive Images: Groundbreaking New Research on Survivors

This presentation will review extraordinary new research regarding survivors whose abuse was memorialized via videography or photography. Based upon experiences of more than 150 survivors, the field may now understand that numerous previously believed tenets are not universal regarding offender dynamics. New research reveals examples such as the fact that some victims who've experienced the production of abusive images were sexually abused from their toddler years until adulthood. Additional concerns are pervasive for victims who have experienced cyberstalking, years after the initial production of abusive images. These facts, as well as recognition of the impact of multi-offender abuse (previously referred to as child sex rings), are relevant to investigators and mental health professionals in the field.

Sharon Cooper is a Developmental and Forensic Pediatrician who cares for children with disabilities, as well as those who have been victims of crimes. Dr. Cooper retired from the U.S. Army Medical Corps with the rank of Colonel and holds faculty positions at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill School of Medicine and the Uniformed University of Health Sciences at Bethesda, Maryland. She has provided a wide array of trainings to medical, judicial, social science and investigative agencies. She has testified regarding child sexual exploitation before the U.S. Congress, the Russian Parliament and the Italian Senate. She is the lead editor of one of the most comprehensive texts on child sexual exploitation in print today, and has published numerous chapters in peer reviewed books on child sexual exploitation. She authored the chapter on child sexual abuse and exploitation for the INTERPOL training handbook. She is a consultant to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children and has served on the boards of many national organizations focused on child maltreatment. She has served as an expert witness in several hundred cases of child maltreatment. As Executive Producer of the film Not Just Pictures, she has provided information and tools to help protect our youth from a growing problem: the production and distribution of child sexual abuse images on the internet.

REVEREND JOSEPH DENNIS
President, Strategies 4 Life and Join 1 Million
_Reflections on Faith: The Role of Faith Communities in the Battle Against Sexual Exploitation_

If I were to give an analogy it would be this: The Church should build walls, morally, in an attempt to keep people from falling off a cliff (giving into sexual sin) but also serve as an ambulance at the bottom of the cliff to be there when lives are wounded by the effects of pornography. It is the Church’s responsibility to build walls of protection by educating people on the evils of pornography and how to walk in moral purity; however, it is also the faith community’s responsibility to minister to those who have been the victim of sexual victimization.

Popular conference and seminar speaker, Pastor Jay Dennis has a passion to lead men to live lives of moral purity and to help pastors and Christian leaders address the issue of pornography within the churches they lead. He served for 21 years as Senior Pastor of First Baptist Church at the Mall in Lakeland, Florida, which under his leadership, grew to over 10,000 members and has been recognized in Growing Churches magazine, Christianity Today and Billy Graham’s Decision Today radio program. In May of 2017, he retired from Church at the Mall and now primarily focuses on helping men live morally pure lives and pastors address the issue of pornography. Dr. Dennis has completed a graduate certification in Sexual Addictions through the Institute for Sexual Wholeness in Atlanta, Georgia and holds a Doctor of Ministry degree from Fuller Theological Seminary. He has authored over six books including “Our Hardcore Battle Plan: Joining the War Against Pornography” and “Pornography in the Church: A Resource Guide for Pastors and Christian Leaders.” He also developed the Decision-Maker’s Bible with Tyndale House Publishers. A native of Fort Smith, Arkansas, he and his wife, Angie, reside in Florida.

Haley has appeared in several media outlets including the New York Post, USA Today, BBC News, Fox News, the Washington Post, Voice of America, and more. She is currently pursuing a Master of Arts at Johns Hopkins University where her thesis addresses online commercial sexual exploitation.

JEFFREY HARMON
Chief Marketing Officer, VidAngel
Make Entertainment Good for Your Home - Lamp Lighters Banquet Speaker

Jeffrey Harmon is the Chief Marketing Officer of VidAngel, the market-leading streaming app made possible by investments from more than 8,000 American families. VidAngel empowers parents to remove distasteful elements from movies and TV shows streamed on Netflix, Amazon, and HBO on Prime. Through its original content division, VidAngel also offers high-quality, family-friendly entertainment options such as its wildly popular clean standup comedy series, Dry Bar Comedy. VidAngel’s success has been well documented, earning both a #1 BestCompany.com user-rating and recognition as the highest-rated streaming app in the Apple and Google Play app stores.

Harmon grew up in a large family in rural Idaho, and was raised with an entrepreneurial spirit. The fifth of nine children, he wanted to attend a private school but his parents could not afford it. So, the 12-year-old Harmon started his own business, selling fresh Idaho potatoes door-to-door in neighboring Utah. From this formative experience, he learned to market and sell products, a skill that has shaped his career.

Upon graduating from BYU, Harmon emerged as the primary architect of a YouTube campaign advertising a product to prevent bad breath, called Orabrush. With more than 50 million views, that campaign was ranked in the top ten social media campaigns of all time, and catapulted the Orabrush Tongue Cleaner from zero retail presence to being stocked on shelves in more than 30,000 stores in 15 countries, proving that products could be marketed digitally to consumers. Harmon became CEO of the company and his Internet marketing campaign remains among the most successful of all time.

From this experience, Jeffrey co-founded Harmon Brothers, whose digital video campaigns for companies such as Poo-Pourri, Squatty Potty, Purple, Chatbooks, and others have racked up over 1 billion views worldwide and their commercials have help sell over $500 million in product online. In doing so, he earned recognition for his continuing innovations. Wired writer Joseph Flaherty called Harmon “the Rob Popiel of the YouTube generation.” In 2013, Jeffrey co-founded VidAngel with his brother Neal, who serves as CEO. Together, they applied their marketing expertise to this lifelong passion project, making entertainment good for your home. He lives in Utah with his wife and four children.

ABCs vs XXX: Combatting School Systems & Policies Normalizing Sexual Exploitation
The Freedom from Sexploitation Agenda
Motivating Action Panel: Innovative & Influential Activist & Education Strategies

Dawn Hawkins is a passionate abolitionist and defender of human rights who has dedicated her life to fighting against societal harms that threaten the dignity of others. Her energy, creativity and mobilization skills have revived the anti-pornography movement and her intentional emphasis on the intersectionality of forms of sexual exploitation has proven a unique and effective strategy for curbing them.

As Sr. Vice President and Executive Director of the National Center on Sexual Exploitation (NCOSE), Mrs. Hawkins has developed a global strategy uniting more than 300 women’s rights, conservative, child advocacy, medical professionals, law enforcement, and religious groups, including a bipartisan political leadership, to work together in raising awareness of the connections between all forms of sexual exploitation. Her initiatives have lead to sweeping policy changes of policies that foster exploitation for targets such as Google, Hilton Worldwide, Comcast, Walmart, and the Department of Defense. Through her leadership, NCOSE has grown a network reaching hundreds of thousands of people all over the world. Mrs. Hawkins has appeared on many local and national television programs, including Fox & Friends, CNN and Good Morning America. She regularly authors articles and speaks around the U.S. and throughout the world addressing the public health harms of pornography, curbing demand for sex trafficking, and protecting children and families in our digital world.

Dawn regularly volunteers for organizations devoted to helping children and refugees. She is a graduate of Tufts University and currently resides with her husband and three children in Virginia.

JENNIFER JOHNSON, PH.D.
Associate Professor and Chair of Sociology Programs, Virginia Commonwealth University
Current Research on Economics and Usage Patterns by College-aged Men and Women

Jennifer A. Johnson, PhD is an Associate Professor and Chair of Sociology at VCU. She received her PhD in Sociology from the University of Virginia in 2004, a MS in Sociology from Virginia Commonwealth University in 1993 and a BS in Sociology from Radford University in 1985. She joined the VCU faculty in 2005.

Professor Johnson’s research interests focus on areas of gender, sexuality and networks. Her present focus lies in analyzing the political economy of the online commercial pornography network by mapping the organizational network of its economic structure to better understand how it markets its product to men. Currently, she is working with a colleague to build a data collection ‘scraper’ to create a dynamic rendering of the organizational network to better observe the way in which the industry changes its marketing strategies in an effort to extract maximum profit from primarily male consumers. Her work has appeared in Everyday Pornographies and International Journal of Media and Cultural Politics. Professor Johnson’s other current work (with Chyng Sun, Ana Bridges and Matt Ezzell) surveys an international sample of college students to better understand the relationship between pornography and their sexual attitudes and behaviors. Her findings show higher rates of pornography use by both men and women are associated with higher levels of bodily and sexual insecurity, a greater reliance on pornography for sexual satisfaction and a decrease in feelings of intimacy. Her work is forthcoming in Annals of Sexual Behavior.

Previous work includes using social network analysis to analyze criminal and adversarial networks, the effectiveness of non-profit organizational networks, the impact of social capital on low income women’s changes of marriage and employment and the way in which social capital promotes educational success. She has also trained the Richmond City Police Department crime analyst team in the use of social network analysis as an investigative tool. Her work at the Department of Defense in the area of social network analysis won her the 2006 Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Joint Distinguished Civilian Service Award, which is the highest ranking civilian service award given by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. She was awarded the 2004 Analyst of the Quarter and 2003 Merit Award by the Joint Warfare Analysis Center for her work on the social network analysis methodology team. Professor Johnson’s teaching was also recognized by a 2002 Virginia statewide award for ‘Technology in Education” for her online instruction to sociology course.

KIMBERLY JONES
Restoration Foster Care Program Director, Arrow Child & Family Ministries

Restoration Foster Care: Filling the Gap for Commercially Sex Trafficked Children

Kimberly Jones has worked in youth and community development organizations for over 20 years. She holds a bachelor’s degree in Cultural Anthropology and Family Studies, and a master’s degree in Organizational Management and Leadership. Jones’ career has allowed her to serve various populations including homeless and immigrant families, lay Christian congregants, youth leaders, and community groups interested in Trust-Based Relational Intervention (TBRI). For the last four years, Jones has worked for Arrow Child & Family Ministries as the Program Director for Freedom Place, a treatment facility for survivors of commercial sex trafficking, and as a foster care senior clinical supervisor. Most recently, Kimberly has been able to combine her love for serving foster youth and love for working with trafficking survivors, as she heads up Restoration Foster Care, Arrow’s innovative program committed to providing trauma-informed treatment foster care for CSEC survivors.

TOM JONES
Founder, The H.O.P.E. Project

PANEL: Life After Trauma: Perspectives from Survivor Advocates

My name is Tom Jones. I was molested at age six and then sex trafficked until age 15 and briefly prostituted in my mid-20s. After processing the trauma and impact of my own exploitation, I founded The H.O.P.E. Project (Healing, Outreach and Peer Empowerment) to create an open and safe space for men to talk about being sexually exploited and work through deep feelings of shame and secrecy to be able to begin healing.

In addition to this, I am actively engaged in the effort to reduce the demand for sex trafficking and prostitution activities as well as combating the Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children (CSEC). I am honored to have joined forces with some amazing organizations both locally and nationally whose aim is to challenge the thinking of men and boys by means of innovative techniques that yield measurable and meaningful results. Some of my associations include:

- “CEASE San Diego” member and program participant
- San Diego County Human Trafficking and CSEC Advisory Council (Survivor Subcommittee)
- Core member of the “Survivor Leader Network of San Diego”
- Program participant at the Prostitution Impact Panel (P.I.P., a.k.a “John School”)
- Treasurer of “Freedom from Exploitation”
- Men’s program leader of “Survivors of the Streets (S.O.S.)”
- Lead Organizer of the “Freedom NOW Fair” Human Trafficking Awareness Street Fair
- Partnered with North County Lifeline (Project L.I.F.E.)
- Member partner of “World Without Exploitation”

The topic of this work that I do requires largely uncomfortable and unpopular discussions, but the real-life occurrences of human trafficking happening to everyday human beings are alarmingly more common on a minute-by-minute basis than many are aware of . . . and that fact demands discussion and courageous action as well. I speak from the perspective of a male survivor, and voices such as mine are vital to the global awareness that boys and men are part of the human trafficking issue. It is a population that is not often heard from, and there is certainly a need for that to change. That is why I do what I do.
ANNE KERR
Founder and CEO, TrueNorth Freedom Project
Porn and Christians: Our Response, Our Hope, and Our Future

Anne Kerr founded TrueNorth Freedom Project in response to the problems of sex trafficking, pornography use, and sexual abuse. TrueNorth promotes sexual honesty and integrity that leads to authentic relationships and spiritual growth. As a follower of Jesus, Anne’s faith guides her work to end sex trafficking and lead many to sexual healing and wholeness. She inspires others to live with integrity in a sexualized culture through TrueNorth’s website, blog, and community events. Anne speaks to church and parent groups and is writing a book for Christian wives and moms. Prayer is a cornerstone of TrueNorth’s work as well as collaboration with partner organizations intent on helping the Christian church become a place for healing and hope for sexual wounds and sexual struggles. TrueNorth Freedom Project is based in Atlanta, Georgia.

LEIGH KOHLER
Co-Founder & Executive Director, Freedom Church Alliance
Awakening the Sleeping Giant: Addressing Sexual Exploitation in and with the Church

Leigh Kohler, speaker, writer, teacher and advocate, is co-founder and Executive Director of the Alliance. Her own personal journey in the fight for justice began after being heartbroken while learning about the reality of human trafficking.

Leigh is a knowledgeable and passionate speaker for God’s mercy and justice. She has spoken to numerous audiences on the issue of human trafficking, including a panel discussion at the Passion Conference in 2013. She serves on the board of As Our Own, a non-profit for vulnerable children in India, and the Redeemed Girl Advisory Board. Leigh currently represents the churches who form the Alliance on the Human Trafficking Rescue Alliance, United Against Human Trafficking’s Rescue and Restore Coalition, the Houston area CEASE Network.

Leigh and her husband Marc have been married nearly 19 years and they have three children. They are both native Houstonians and they met and married at their home church, Houston’s First Baptist where they have been serving as Life Bible Study teachers for a young singles class for eight years. She loves teaching God’s Word and is passionate about seeing people set free – physically and spiritually. She would say that her greatest thrill in all of life has come from knowing Jesus and following Him.

MARY G. LEARY
Professor, The Catholic University of America
The Third Dimension of Victimization: How Victimization of our Digital SELves is Victimization of the Person

Professor Leary is a professor of law at The Catholic University of America. She is a former prosecutor and attorney in the non-profit sector, focusing on crimes against women and children; the former policy consultant and deputy director for the Office of Legal Counsel at the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC); and the former director of the National Center for the Prosecution of Child Abuse (NCPCA).

Professor Leary’s scholarship examines the intersection of criminal law, constitutional criminal procedure, technology, and contemporary victimization. She focuses on the exploitation and abuse of women, children, and “vulnerable peoples.” She is a recognized expert in the areas of criminal law, victimization, exploitation, human trafficking, missing persons, technology, and the Fourth Amendment.

She is the lead co-author of Perspectives on Missing Persons Cases (Carolina Academic Press), the only comprehensive multi-disciplinary book on this type of victimization. Her most recent works include an article advocating for the recognition of digital victimization as a modern and separate category of crime (The Third Dimension of Victimization). Additionally, she recently published a critical analysis of the use of the term “modern day slavery” to describe human trafficking, arguing that it is an appropriate label (“Modern Day Slavery” – Implications of a Label). Her current work in progress includes an exploration of the promise of affirmative consent, arguing for its use in a broader “consent culture” modeled after the anti-drunk driving movement of the late 20th century.

Before joining academia, Professor Leary worked primarily on issues addressing the abuse and exploitation of children and women, child pornography, sex trafficking, computer facilitated crimes against children, and family violence cases. As both a state and federal prosecutor, Professor Leary focused on family violence and sexual assault, but successfully prosecuted at the trial and appellate levels, an array of criminal cases. She is a former Assistant U.S. Attorney and served as deputy chief of the Domestic Violence Unit for the Middlesex County District Attorney’s Office.
in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Leary also served as an assistant district attorney in the Family Violence and Sexual Assault Unit of the Philadelphia District Attorney’s Office. Professor Leary clerked for the Hon. Sue L. Robinson in the U.S. District Court for the District of Delaware.

Professor Leary plays an active role in policy development on a number of issues regarding victimization, exploitation, and technology. She was appointed to the Victim Advisory Group of the United States Sentencing Commission and is the former co-chair of the Victims Group of the ABA’s Criminal Justice Section. She has addressed audiences both nationally and internationally, including but not limited to the World Congress Against the Exploitation of Children and Adolescents in Brazil, The University of Leeds (England), The International Society for the Reform of Criminal Law, the University of Virginia, the University of Mississippi, Syracuse University, Emory University, the Department of Justice’s Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section, The Child Abuse Group of the Pediatric Academic Society, The CBI Academy in Delhi, India, the National Association of Attorneys General, and numerous other audiences. Professor Leary has been a lecturer for NCMEC, The National Law Center for Children and Families, The National Advocacy Center, National Judicial College, The National Center for Justice and the Rule of Law, and The International Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Professor Leary is a sought after commentator for numerous media outlets and has provided commentary to platforms including, but not limited to The New York Times, C-Span National Journal, National Public Radio, The Legal Times, Wall Street Journal Online, Gannet Newspapers, PolitiFact, CNET News, and USA Today. She is a regular contributor to the Mirror of Justice Blog.

She is the 2011–12 recipient of the Award for Teaching Excellence in Early Career from The Catholic University of America. Graduating classes selected professor Leary as their Faculty Marshal 2010, 2011, 2013 and 2014. In 2009 and 2015, the students of Catholic University’s law school named Professor Leary Teacher of the Year. She is also the recipient of the Mary, Mirror of Justice Award (2009).

She received her B.A. with honors from Georgetown University and earned her J.D. from the Georgetown University Law Center.

Laura J. Lederer founded and directed The Protection Project at Harvard University’s John F. Kennedy School of Government in 1997. From 2001 to 2009, she served as Senior Advisor on Trafficking in Persons to Under Secretary of State for Democracy and Global Affairs, Paula J. Dobriansky. She was also the Executive Director of the Senior Policy Operating Group on Trafficking in Persons, a high level inter-agency policy group that staffed the President’s cabinet-level Inter-agency Task Force on Trafficking in Persons. She received her B.A. magna cum laude in comparative religions from the University of Michigan. After 10 years in philanthropy as director of community and social concerns at a private foundation, she continued her education at the University of San Francisco Law School and DePaul College of Law and received her juris doctorate in June 1994. She has received many awards, including the Gustavus Meyers Center for Study of Human Rights Annual Award for Outstanding Work on Human Rights, the Adele Hertz Award of Commission of Foreign Nursing Schools for her groundbreaking work on health and human trafficking, and the University of Michigan Alumni Humanitarian Service Award, the greatest award to living University of Michigan alumni, for her work on human trafficking. In 2009, she received The Protection Project 2009 Human Rights Award of Johns Hopkins University’s School of Advanced International Studies for her invaluable contribution to the global movement to stop human trafficking. In 2010, she founded Global Centurion, a non-profit organization dedicated to fighting trafficking by focusing on reducing and ultimately eradicating demand (the perpetrators, exploiters, buyers that fuel trafficking). Under her leadership, Global Centurion helped design and implement the largest demand reduction training in the world: a mandatory training of 3 million U.S. military personnel; and conducted the first ever survey of survivors on the health implications of human trafficking. She is the author of many articles and books, most recently Modern Slavery: A Document and Reference Guide to the Development of the 21st Century Anti-Slavery Movement (ABC-CLIO, 2018). It tracks four anti-slavery traditions: religious, secular abolitionist, feminist, and human rights, to better understand the philosophy, policy, and program approaches of anti-trafficking organizations today.

MELODY LOVVORN
Life and Relationship Coach, Undone Redone
Out of the Shadows: How Toxic Shame Fuels Sexual Exploitation

Tray and Melody had been married for 10 years when Tray’s secret struggle with pornography and sexual sin ripped their family apart. But after 6 years of divorce, God brought about a miraculous reconciliation and they have been remarried now for almost 10 years. Discovering that true healing is found on the other side of pain, Tray and Melody have a passion to help men, women, and families impacted by sexual brokenness learn to connect deeply with others in safe, authentic community.

Their story was featured in the 2017 film The Heart of Man, a movie dealing with shame, sexual abuse, pornography, and the epidemic of sexual brokenness in our culture.

Tray and Melody are sought after speakers and teachers on the subjects of marriage, parenting and protecting the next generation, betrayal trauma, sexual addiction, and grace. Through Undone Redone, their Birmingham-based non-profit and national weekly podcast, Tray and Melody provide life and marriage coaching, recovery intensives, parenting solutions, and help churches establish Christ-centered recovery groups.

Chair, The Reward Foundation
RALLY: Pornography and Public Health in Ireland and Abroad

After a career as a cultural leader in the fields of science communication, museums, libraries and art galleries, I have spent the last three years working in pornography-harm-awareness. I have a background in research and information management. I am now the Chair of the Reward Foundation, a Scottish charity which uses a brain learning model to reach diverse audiences with a risk-based approach to reducing demand for pornography. I am keen to influence both supply and demand factors through government policy. I teach in schools, train doctors on the impact of internet pornography on mental and physical health and act as a bridge between academic researchers and the therapy and recovery communities.

ERROL NAIDOO
Founder and CEO, Family Policy Institute - South Africa
PANEL: National & International Activism & Engagement
RALLY: Global Update Presentation: Why the Battle Against Sexual Exploitation in South Africa and Africa is Critical

Errol Naidoo is the Founder and CEO of Family Policy Institute (FPI) – a non-profit, pro-family, public policy research and educational organization based in Cape Town, South Africa. While serving as Director of Public Affairs at His People Christian Church, Errol sensed the call of God to establish a ministry to inform, educate and equip the greater Church Body to fulfill its God-given mandate to be salt & light to society. Since its launch in 2008, FPI has been at the forefront of the battle to defend the family and advance Biblical Christian values in Parliament, the media and general society.

Errol is the producer and host of “Watchmen on the Wall,” a current affairs TV program from a Biblical perspective - broadcast weekly in primetime on Faith broadcasting Network and “Salt & Light”, a current affairs TV program broadcast weekly on TBN in Africa. He also produces a syndicated radio program, “Watchmen on the Wall Radio Half-Hour” broadcast every week on several Christian radio channels across the country.

In May 2016, Errol formed the Coalition To End Sexual Exploitation South Africa (CESESA). CESESA consists of more than 40 respected national organizations working together to end sexual exploitation, sex trafficking and abuse of women and children in South Africa. FPI’s submissions on Adult Prostitution to the South African Law Reform Commission (SALRC) was instrumental in defeating the agenda to decriminalize the sex industry in South Africa. Errol Naidoo is a regular contributor and uncompromising voice for family values in the national media in South Africa. He is an author, columnist, public speaker and pro-family advocate committed to advancing a family centered philosophy of life. Errol regularly makes submissions to the South African Parliament on issues critical for the protection of marriage, family and religious freedoms.

Errol & Arlene celebrated 32 years of marriage on 12 December 2017. They have three children Jill (married to Michael), Jay (married to Aniska) & Jared and two grandchildren Alexandra & Connor.

Where is the Outrage in America About Human Trafficking

As a summa cum laude graduate of the University of Notre Dame, Geoff rose quickly to the rank of Vice President at IBM and Dassault Systemes in his corporate career. He was the recipient of numerous distinctive awards, including enlistment into the exclusive “Next-Gen” program, as one of 40 future senior leaders selected from IBM’s global employee population of over 300,000. After 15 years in the corporate world, Geoff left to begin his focus on non-profit work in 2011.

Since then, Geoff and his wife Kerri have run the Ships of Tarshish, a non-profit, Christian production company in Tampa, FL, with a mission to engage Christians across America on critical social issues that The Church needs to address. Their latest project, titled Blind Eyes Opened, is a nationwide documentary about the truth of sex trafficking in America. While working on the film, Geoff developed a passion for those caught in the grips of the industry. Recognizing the dramatic need to fight human trafficking across the United States, Geoff, along with Kevin Malone, co-founded the U.S. Institute Against Human Trafficking, and serves as the CEO of the organization. Geoff and his wife, Kerri, value family and enjoy spending time with their three amazing boys.
