

General Policies for Attending the Coalition to End Sexual Exploitation Global Summit

Conditions for Attending:

Community fit: You must be likely, in the judgment of the National Center on Sexual Exploitation, be a good addition to the CESE community -- someone who can contribute to the conversations and connections at the CESE Global Summit, and the projects that may come out of it.

Conferences code of conduct

Those attending the CESE Global Summit understand that they do so in a spirit of open-mindedness, respect and tolerance. The National Center on Sexual Exploitation (NCOSE) does not tolerate harassment in any form. Participants agree to respect confidentiality, and understand that the atmosphere at the CESE Global Summit is appropriate for high-level relationship building and strategy development in growing the movement to end sexual exploitation.

NCOSE reserves the right to sanction or expel conference participants who violate these rules.
