

Cover Page: National Center on Sexual Exploitation's Policy on Sharing Proof

WARNING: The material in this document may contain graphic text, blurred images, and survivor quotes that may trigger the viewer.

Why do we post proof in the first place?

NCOSE researchers have collected this proof as evidence of the material that is made, contained, and/or distributed by the corporations and institutions NCOSE is confronting.

Proof is shared with corporate executives, shareholders, and/or board members, as well as with policymakers, law enforcement, journalists, and the general public to give witness to the sexual exploitation and abuse that is often rampant, yet sometimes hidden, on these platforms.

Why do you blur out images, including faces, if they're publicly available?

While we believe it is important to provide ample evidence of wrong-doing to support our claims and inspire change, we also strongly believe that no one – neither adult, nor child – should be exposed to the type of material our researchers collect: either for their own well-being, or out of respect for those being exploited. It is for this reason we pixelate/blur/block not only nudity or sexually graphic content, but also the faces of those being exploited.

We also want to limit access to this material (unfortunately, a luxury not afforded to children and adults using many of the platforms and products made by these companies). Therefore, we add several layers before someone can access the proof, and also don't include all the proof that we have obtained. If someone feels they need to see more evidence to understand the extent of the problem or the type of exploitation that is happening, they may request it of NCOSE by writing to public@ncose.com.

Did you receive people's permission to post?

Any personal testimony shared to NCOSE directly is posted only with the affected parties approval.

For material that is publicly available, we do not seek permission to post. However, we redact names and usernames of survivors from articles, social media, etc. even when publicly available. To read more about our commitment to ethical engagement with survivors, please go here. We do not redact names or usernames of exploiters who have posted publicly.

Disclaimer: while we do collect information on those who request access to more proof, that information will only be used for our own, internal analysis. It will not be distributed, shared, or posted publicly or with outside parties.

Nonconsensual Content Still Surfacing in Google Search

It is disturbingly easy to find non-consensually shared/recorded sexually explicit content via Google Search—particularly when equipped with the names of specific victims.

Further, countless links to content that is most likely non-consensual can be found via Google Search. For example, entire webpages dedicated to “leaked,” “spycam/hidden camera,” footage and more. While it’s possible that some videos appearing in Google Search are consensual, and are fictitiously depicting lack of consent, it’s highly likely that the majority of results are in fact non-consensual—due to the revelations that the majority of porn platforms fail to meaningfully verify age or consent.

The GirlsDoPorn Case

GirlsDoPorn was a pornography production company that was exposed as a human trafficking ring, which victimized hundreds of women. Victims were assaulted, defrauded, doxed, and also faced significant harassment both offline and online.

Among other criminal indictments, a GirlsDoPorn producer was sentenced to 20 years in prison for sex trafficking. And civilly, a lawsuit against GirlsDoPorn was successfully brought forward by 22 women to expose the manipulation and outright fraud committed by the porn company.

Tragically, it’s estimated by cybersecurity experts that tens of thousands of images and videos of the victims remain online—many of which include the victim’s names. This has led to victims facing discrimination in housing and employment, impacted personal relationships, and online harassments and threats.

Despite criminal and civil victories proving that these women are survivors of sex trafficking and abuse, Google has failed to remove the content from search results and even when survivors report content Google is inconsistent in its response.

NCOSE Researcher Findings:

On March 1 2022, NCOSE researchers found videos that appear to depict survivors of the criminally indicted GirlsDoPorn sex trafficking ring within the very first related Google Search result. Some of these videos included titles listing the survivors’ full names.

How Google has destroyed the lives of revenge porn victims

New York Post, 2019

"In 2016, I pleaded with Google's "Legal Removals" team to show mercy on 15 women I represented in a case against a porn company. My clients, all aged 18-22, had answered deceptive bikini-model ads and had become embroiled in a conspiracy to perform porn that resulted in some of them being raped before and during the shoots. These nonconsensual sex videos were then shared hundreds of thousands of times on popular porn sites.... [Google declined to remove the content.-...] The vast majority of Google's revenue comes from ads, thus requiring that its traffic stay high and that it not upset the industries — especially the always-profitable porn industry — that pay handsomely for ads.

"I Didn't Know If They'd Kill Me": What Happened When This Jane Doe Was Trafficked By GirlsDoPorn

In an exclusive interview, Jane Doe #18 told us her experience of what happened before, during, and after she was sex trafficked by GirlsDoPorn. This is her story.

Fight the New Drug - July 20, 2021

When rape goes viral

Two weeks later, a boy Jane went to high school with sent her a picture of his penis with a graphic sexual message. She was shocked and confused.

Then she discovered why.

A nearly hour-long video of that agonizing night was released on two major porn websites, including Pornhub. The title included her full legal name. When Jane found out, she ran to the bathroom and was violently sick.

Seeing her video online was the first time Jane heard the name “GirlsDoPorn.” She tried calling and emailing Mark and any other contact she had at the company, but all were out of service.

By the end of the day, Jane received nearly 50 messages through her social media accounts. Many were from people she grew up with, boys from her high school. Jane’s family soon found out and assumed she had consented, that she had sought out the filming gig for attention. The disappointment and humiliation were unbearable.

Jane had dreams, ambitions, and plans for the future. But she said, “As soon as that video came out, I just thought, everything I ever hoped for isn’t going to happen.”

“I get triggered if someone checks me out at the supermarket,” Jane said. “If I’m on the train and a man smiles at me, I start feeling like I need to throw up. I think, ‘They’ve seen it. They recognize me.’”
